Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Monday 19 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mainly dry on Monday. Brightest in the east.

Today:
A chilly start, but ,much of Scotland will be dry and bright with best of sunshine in the east where it will become warm. Rather more cloud around in west with thicker and lower cloud across the Hebrides bringing rain.

Tonight:
Clear spells in east in evening but cloud and rain will spill southeast across the country through the night, though the Borders and much of Lothian will stay dry.

Tuesday:
Dry, perhaps bright start in southeast, otherwise cloudy with outbreaks of rain. Becoming brighter with a few showers in northwest in morning and most other parts by end of day].

Outlook for Wednesday to Friday:
Perhaps early rain in south Wednesday, otherwise mainly dry and bright with sunny spells, but cooler, with night frosts, A few showers far north, some wintry and heavy over Shetland.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.